

Demo RStudio and EDA

This is an R Markdown Notebook. When you execute code within the notebook, the results appear beneath the code.

At the very beginning is an (optional) YAML header surrounded by `---`s, the header specifies useful meta data.

Below the header is the first code chunk, this chunk sets global options that apply to every chunk in your file. This is done by calling `knitr::opts_chunk$set` in this code chunk. Note that these global defaults can be overwritten in individual chunk headers. `include = FALSE` prevents both codes and results from appearing.

To understand `echo = TRUE`, `message = FALSE` and `warning = FALSE`, read RMarkdown tips and tricks. Energetic Students: read the “Shortening knit time” section and try it in this file

Try executing this chunk by clicking the Run button within the chunk or by placing your cursor inside it and pressing Cmd+Shift+Enter.

Add a new chunk by clicking the Insert Chunk button on the toolbar or by pressing Cmd+Option+I.

When you save the notebook, an HTML file containing the code and output will be saved alongside it (click the Preview button or press Cmd+Shift+K to preview the HTML file).

Exercise 8 from ISLR Chapter 2

The following illustrate commands for exploring this exercise using R and various packages for the College data.

Libraries

Try to load the ISLR library

library(ISLR)

If it is not available you will need to install the library from CRAN. Click on Packages then Install. Enter the package name then click on the Install button.

You can also install from the console/command line using `install.packages("ISLR")`.

Ready?

Getting the College data

Next we will need to load the dataset. This is part of the library so we will not need to read it in using `read.csv` but rather we will use the `data` function to load it from the library.

data(College)

This loads the dataframe College. Note you can always see the content of any R object by simply typing its name.

For information about the variables, read the text or enter

help(College)

The info will appear in the help tab.

To see explore the data, you can use the command `View(College)`.

This will open a new tab, where you may scroll left and right to look at the rows and columns. In the View you should see that the first column is the College/University name. These can be extracted using `rownames(College)`. Let's print out the first 5

rownames(College)[1:5]

[1] "Abilene Christian University" "Adelphi University"
[3] "Adrian College"             "Agnes Scott College"
[5] "Alaska Pacific University"

Dimensions of Data

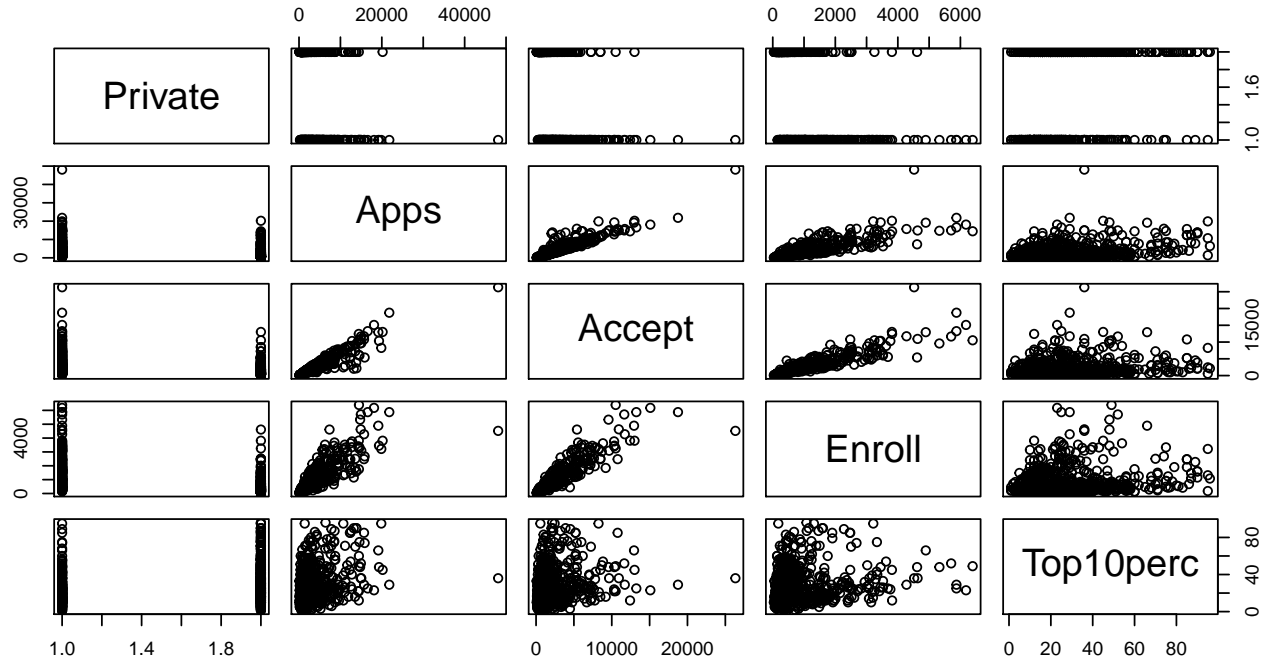

How many observations and variables are in the dataframe?

Suppose we want to refer to those numbers in the text. We can extract them using `n = 777` and `d = 18`. Look at the code to see how we extracted them.

Scatter plot matrices

There base R version of scatter plot matrices is obtained using the `pairs` function to plot all variables versus each other. We can use subsetting of columns of the dataframe to look at the first 5 columns.

pairs(College[, 1:5])
```

We can also look at this using the `ggpairs` function. Install the library `GGally` if it is not available (and any dependent libraries) and load it.

library(GGally)
ggpairs(College, columns= c(1,3:5, 2))

The last variable 2 is our response.

Note `ggpairs` will show its progress in your output and using `warning=FALSE` or `message=FALSE` does not suppress it. This answer on this Stackexchange post: provided the trick or `progress=F` to suppress the progress bar.

gp = ggpairs(College, columns= c(1,3:5, 2))
print(gp, progress=F)

The `ggpairs` function realizes that the variable `Private` is categorical and plots side by side histograms. The density plots are also useful for seeing the skewness in the marginal distributions.

What other features do these plots indicate? (Think about assumptions for linear regression)

New variables

Let's create a new variable `Elite` by binning the `Top10perc` variable. We are going to divide universities into two groups based on whether or not the proportion of students coming from the top 10% of their high school classes exceeds 50 %. We will use the library `dplyr` to illustrate some of the possible transformations and the idea of pipes, which are quite powerful once you get the hang of them!

For students who are unfamiliar with `dplyr`, read this intro first.

library(dplyr) College = College %>%
  mutate(Elite = factor(Top10perc > 50)) %>% mutate(Elite =
    recode(Elite, 'TRUE' = "Yes", 'FALSE'="No"))

What is the above doing? Document the code here.

Compare to the base R code:

Elite=rep("No",nrow(College))
Elite[College$Top10perc >50]="Yes"
```

```
Elite=as.factor(Elite) college=data.frame(College ,Elite)

How many Elite universities are there?

summary(College$Elite)

No Yes
699 78

Side by Side Boxplots

Let's plot the variable `Outstate` versus `Elite` using side-by-side boxplots. Using `base R` we would enter boxplot(Outstate ~ Elite, data=College, ylab="Outstate", xlab="Elite") title("Distribution of Out of State Tuition")

Now for the `ggplot` version:

library(ggplot2)
my.bp <-ggplot(data=College, aes(y= Outstate, x=Elite)) # Creates boxplots my.bp <- my.bp + geom_boxplot() # Adds color my.bp <- my.bp + ggtitle("Distribution of Out of State Tuition") # Adds a title my.bp <- my.bp + ylab("Outstate") + xlab("Elite") # Adds labes for axes my.bp # displays the boxplots

Conditional Plots

Let's look at the distribution of Out of state tuition versus Elite status for Private versus Public universities using conditional plots

coplot(Outstate ~ Elite | Private, data=College)

Given : Private

ggplot conditional plot

library(ggplot2)
ggplot(College, aes(x = Elite, y = Outstate, group = Private, color = Private)) + geom_point() + facet_grid(.~Private) + ggtitle("Distribution of Out of State Tuition")

Updating your work on GitHub

In the upper right you should see a tab labeled Git. Click on that to see a list of files that have been added/changed.

To save changes to github, check the box of any file to add/update. Then click on the Commit link (just above path). In the pop-up window add a Commit message (something meaningful that identifies the changes made). When done, click on Commit to save the changes. Click on the Green Up arrow to push your changes to Github.
